Createspace, United States, 2011. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 203 x 133 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Betel Nuts Other Stories by Simeon G. Silverio, Jr. Entertaining and easy-to-read short stories about growing up in the Philippines. Excerpts from the book One day, however, the duckling went inside an opening under the house. Borobot waited for it to come out but it did not. He kept waiting even when it got dark, but there was no sign of the duckling. When his father came home that evening, he told him about his missing duckling. His dad took a flashlight and pointed it toward the opening. He inserted a long stick inside and tried to stir it. They could hear some squealing but no quacking. Finally, his dad told him the bad news: The rats have eaten your duckling. Borobot cried and cried for a very long time. - from Chapter 2 - Childhood Tales If there is a person that can aptly be called the son of a bitch, which in Pilipino, is synonymous to the phrase, the son of a whore (anak ng puta), it would be Tikboy. Tikboy was one of Eric s playmates on Platerias Street where Eric lived with his family on the second floor of his father s printing business in Manila in 1957. Tikboy s mother, Purita, worked as a prostitute in a brothel across the street from Eric s house. - from Chapter 6 - Just Like Any Mother From where he sat, he could tell Juanita had just bathed. Her hair was still damp and the fragrant scent of her cheap bath soap wafted through the air. She hardly noticed him as she was minding her own business. While he pretended to be concentrating...
